National Security Law Journal* to host a panel of general counsel on cybersecurity

ARLINGTON, VA — The National Security Law Journal is excited to announce its spring symposium, Cracking Cyber: A Discussion with General Counsel to Demystify the Hacking Phenomenon. The event will feature three panelists: Mr. Joseph Maher, the Principal Deputy General Counsel from the Department of Homeland Security, Mr. W. Renn Gade, the Senior Legal Counsel from the Office of the Director of National Intelligence and Ms. Eliana Davidson, the Deputy General Counsel from the Department of Defense. The panel will discuss emerging issues in cybersecurity.

“Since cybersecurity remains an emerging field in national security, we thought this event would not only be interesting for our audience, but timely, as well,” said Stacy Allen, Executive Editor of the Journal. “We’re excited to host panelists who will bring unique, dynamic perspectives on the subject,” Allen continued.

The event will be held from 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Founders Hall Auditorium on George Mason’s Arlington Campus at 3351 Fairfax Drive, Arlington, VA on Wednesday, April 8, 2015. Refreshments will be provided during check-in, which will begin at 6:00 p.m. Registration is complimentary, but space is limited so advance registration is recommended. Register now at www.nslj.org.

The National Security Law Journal is a student-edited law journal at George Mason University School of Law in Arlington, Virginia. Our journal features original scholarly articles in the exciting, evolving field of national security law, including legal issues related to diplomacy, intelligence, and the military. We released our inaugural issue in March 2013 in both digital and print form. Please visit our website at www.nslj.org to read our issues online, purchase the print edition, submit an article for publication, or sign up for our e-mail newsletter.
